

THE ADVENTURES OF ANT, FLASH & KY

What? How? Why? | Latest News | Just Another Day | Prayer Request & Praise Reports

John 15:16 You did not choose Me but I chose you, and appointed you that you would go and bear fruit, and that your fruit would remain, so that whatever you ask of the Father in My name He may give to you.

Why Thailand?

Anthony went to finish up his Seminary requirements and praise the Lord that he is finally finished with his Masters degree. Only a couple papers to write over the next couple weeks and he will be done.

How is Aussie?

He is still very sick. For those that may not remember, he has some sort of problem causing fluid to put pressure on his brain. The doctors here are not able to help him. His family has tried many traditional approaches, such as witch doctors and diviners. We have been able to pray with them and share the Gospel but they are only looking for healing at whatever cost. Pray for them to have true understanding of the Gospel. Pray that if it would bring glory to God that Aussie might be healed.

What's next?

This month we have mobile clinics and many other great opportunities to be with the people and share God' love!

Boy or Girl?!?!

This has been the question for us for several months now. In fact, we were certain that we would know at the end of March before our meeting in Malawi, but that didn't happen. However, the wait is over and we were able to find out that we will be having a little GIRL!

Come August we will have 2 little girls around the house to keep Anthony on his toes that is for sure. April is doing well and the doctor said that she and the baby are both very healthy. In fact, apparently this little girl has really long legs, so we may have a basketball player in the making! Anthony can only hope so:)

Witnessing Opportunities

We were outside of Mozambique for a majority of this month, but we still had several opportunities to share the Good News with a few people. One evening, April was getting a foot massage and was sitting next to several gentlemen. After a few minutes of conversations, she heard their stories and realized that they were certainly not believers. They even asked her some intense questions regarding her beliefs. They were Americans, so their questions were specific to the hot topics that are circling the States. It was a good time for her to share truth with them about true salvation and a real hope.

After returning home, we encountered a few problems with the water project that we had started a few months back. That led to this past Sunday morning being filled with about 3 hours of meeting time with everyone involved to figure out what the problem was. After all things were said, it left the door wide open to explain that the overall purpose of the water project is to show the love of Christ and to share that there is hope and joy in Jesus Christ. Sunday morning, 4 men were able to hear that God created a way for them to be saved. They also heard that even with all the troubles that the project had faced, the most important thing was that the Gospel be preached. It was a great time of showing that we were not upset with the results if that meant Christ would be glorified.

Just Another Day.....

At just 2 years old, Kyleigh has already traveled more than most do in their entire lifetime. She is American, but has never been to the United States. She was born in South Africa, raised in Mozambique and has visited 7 other countries just in the last year. She can understand English, Portuguese and Kimwani. Her life has been anything but normal by most peoples standards, but for her, it is perfectly normal and is fun. At 2 years old she has already been on about 20 different flights and has made several road trips of 3 and 4 days stuck in the car. All of this is normal to her. She knows what power (electricity) is and when the power goes off and comes on she rolls with it like its nothing.

Her only consistent American friend is Penley and they absolutely love each other. She has many Mozambican friends and many others over many different countries and even continents, but all of this is normal to her. She has no problem meeting new friends and falling in love with them in a short period of time. She shares and gives hugs and kisses and has no trouble being with different people in different cultures. Two of her most favorite people in the entire world is a 12 year old boy and 8 year old girl that live in Southeast Asia. She has friends all over the world and when she sees them it is like they never were not there. Her desire to be with people and love them and play with them is amazing.

At 2 years old, she can take tablet medicine like a champ. In fact, she will play a game with you to see who can finish theirs first. She knows what ticks are and will sit still for you to check her hair and ears every night to make sure none have found there way to an unwelcome home. Afterwards, she wants to check your hair and ears to help out. She knows what it means when daddy crawls under her bug net every night before she gets in bed. No, not to tuck her in but to check for mosquitos and kill any that may have found a way in.

Why is this so important to take note of? It is not for you to feel sorry for her because she loves it. She loves the airplanes and the time in new places. It is not for you to say that she needs some stability because if you spend more than 5 minutes with her, you will find out that she is a special and awesome little girl that loves life and is full of joy. Yes, she is only 2, but we can learn so much from her because of how she has adjusted to her life. It wasn't her choice to have parents who live in Africa. It wasn't her choice to travel around the world. However, she is adapting to that. We have a choice to learn to adapt or not and learn to love where we are and find our joy in Jesus and not in our circumstances.

You see, Kyleigh, along with many other kids that grow up with parents who live on the field learn that what is important is being with people and sharing the love of Christ with them. It is not the luxury of having a nice house or car. It is not being close to family. It is not about a good education or great school system within the county. It is all about allowing God to work in you and through you no matter where you are. So that brings us to a fork in the road. A Challenge if you will. Where do you find your joy? Do the circumstances around you dictate your attitude? May we remember that God is with us wherever we may go and whatever we may do.
